

EDUWATCH COMMENDS GOVERNMENT ON THE LAUNCH OF THE GHANA TVET SERVICE

Eduwatch commends the Government of Ghana for launching the Ghana TVET Service, a body responsible for managing the delivery of TVET service in the country, as mandated by the Pre-Tertiary Education Act. The setting up of the TVET Service will harmonize and strengthen the governance, management and delivery of TVET service in Ghana, a departure from the previous arrangement where over 200 TVET institutions were scattered under various Ministries, Departments, and Agencies, creating an amorphous and incongruous governance system which affected effectiveness, efficiency and accountability in TVET service delivery.

With the Ghana TVET Service now launched, all pre-tertiary TVET training institutions irrespective of their mother Ministry, Department or Agency, will be managed by the Ghana TVET Service. This provides opportunities for a much more harmonized governance and improved management and delivery of TVET service which is key to ensuring the successful implementation of the Government of Ghana's Free TVET Program.

It is our expectation that the transitional arrangements, institutional governance systems, logistics, human and financial resources required to fully operationalize the Ghana TVET Service at the national and regional levels are prioritized to ensure a successful TVET reform in Ghana.
